

MIRROR IMAGE

МІРКОБ ІМАЇЄ

What Darwin missed

by

Anthony Campbell

Set in the stunning scenery of Ynys Môn in North Wales, Russel Milford, a brilliant biochemist from Cambridge, grapples with a scientific mystery that his students and colleagues tell him to give up. Was his decision to give up a great career in Cambridge a disastrous mistake? Now in Wales, is he going to throw it all away again? Again his stubbornness gets him into trouble. But he becomes inspired by the beautiful landscape of Anglesey, and its natural history. Retracing the famous walk Charles Darwin took in 1831, a discovery is made.

Russ decides to tackle what seems an apparently impossible problem. But his mind becomes distracted by a very attractive Welsh PhD student. Is he going to wreck his career, this time by ignoring the University regulations not to have a personal involvement with a student? His obsession infuriates all those around him.

As the story unfolds Russ's genius comes to the fore, leading to an outcome no one could have predicted.

Available at:

<https://theyoungdarwinian.com/shop/>